Our Chatterbox Cards 1950s include 26 large picture cards with everyday items from the relevant decade; from mangels to music, from romance to rationing.

- Each version contains 26 large themed pictures cards relevant to that decade
- Images have been carefully researched by asking over 120 people aged over 65

These cards provide mental stimulation for the elderly, whilst also encouraging conversation & story sharing. They can be used to help improve communication in older relatives or loved ones, or in Alzheimer's groups or care homes.

What's on the cards?

Each card consists of the following:

1. Large high-quality picture covering one side of the card
2. Background information regarding the picture on the reverse
3. Conversational prompt questions, also located on the reverse

What we like about this product

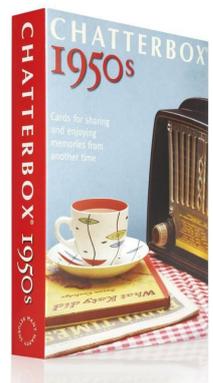

Most forms of dementia, but especially Alzheimer's, cause severe problems with short-term memory & cognitive function.

However many older memories remain intact even in stage 3 of Alzheimer's Disease. Scientists believe this is due to long-term memory being stored in different areas of the brain. In contrast, the formation of new memories relies heavily on the hippocampus, which is the first area of the brain to show symptoms of Alzheimer's disease.

Visual prompts such as these cards are exceptionally effective at stimulating older memories in people with Alzheimer's or dementia.

They can also help promote communication, either in individuals or in groups; and with 26 different cards in each edition, they can be used again & again!
