Benefits

- Exercises hands & fingers, can help improve circulation
- May calm agitated hands & minds, great stress reliever
- Can help reduce skin-picking and other forms of repetitive behaviour
- Encourages communication, enjoyment, and reminiscence

People with cognitive loss can find great comfort in having something to play with and fiddle cushions for dementia patients are one of the most popular solutions.

Dementia cushions (and other sensory products) may help alleviate stress and restlessness in dementia patients or people with Alzheimer's disease.

Studies have shown that while restless hands may seem like a harmless symptom, they may be linked to other more serious symptoms; such as wandering or dermatillomania (skin-picking).
